School Debating Team

Should playtime replace homework?

Our debating team took part in several debating matches this year. One of the hot topics was about playtime and homework. First, read the arguments for and against the motion below and decide if you think playtime should replace homework.

Playtime is great for developing our social skills. We need these skills to interact with people and prepare ourselves for the world of work.

We agree with you but this debate is about whether playtime should replace homework. We need homework and playtime.

I don't agree. What about the lack of sleep, headaches and stomach problems. Homework is not good for our health! No more homework!

I don't agree at all. As long as we are doing the right tasks and don't spend too much time on homework, it helps us to be more responsible.

That might be true, however, let's get back to reality. Do you really think most schools will make the choice to only give a little homework? I don't think so.

But many schools just have a little homework so why can't all schools? It's like saying we should ban dark chocolate because some people can't control themselves!

Food tongue twisters!

Tongue twisters are words or sounds that are difficult to say quickly and correctly.

Here are some examples. Try to say them at least 5 times.

I saw a kitten eating chicken in the kitchen. (x 5)

I scream, you scream, we all scream for ice cream. (x 5)

Fred fed Ted bread, and Ted fed Fred bread. (x 5)

Four fine fresh fish for you. (x 5)
